Finally, some good news about Mandriva.

In cooker mailing list Eugeni Dodonov announce the next Mandriva 2011 release dates.

Hello folks,

*After long period of silence, I am pleased to give you some official news from Mandriva about the next Mandriva version. And, to compensate for all the time without news and announcements, I give you *two* releases at once.*

Yes, you read it right. In the coming months, not one, but two Mandriva releases will be released!

First, we will release Mandriva 2010.2 [1], with estimated release date of December 22, as a Christmas gift for you all. Mandriva 2010.2 is a refreshed look at our latest release, Mandriva 2010.1, plus all the security and bugfix updates which were done after its release, plus also lots of improvements, stability and performance fixes in many, many packages.

And, besides Mandriva 2010.2, of course, time has come to announce the Mandriva 2011 release [2]. The Mandriva 2011 release will be done according to the following schedule:

- Mandriva 2011 Alpha: January 31 2011*
- Mandriva 2011 Beta 1: February 28 2011*
- Mandriva 2011 Beta 2: March 28 2011*
- Mandriva 2011 RC: April 25 2011*
- Mandriva 2011 Final: May 30 2011*

Starting with Mandriva 2011 release, the release policy for Mandriva will change to 1 release per year. This will allow us to develop even greater releases, and - of course - will give us more time to test, validate and further improve the overall quality of the release.

The technical specifications and detailed features of Mandriva 2011 will be announced and discussed soon, and the hard - and interesting - work will begin.

As I promised in my previous email, more news will come soon. So stay tuned!
